The Golden Spoon

I've read and heard so many good reports of the Thai restaurant The Golden Spoon that I decided to try it myself. The menu appeared to be all in Thai but then we noticed the English translations. When the waitress realized it was our first visit, she came across as she knew it would take us a long time to choose. In the end we ordered what she recommended because we didn't know where to start – there was so much choice. Because it was early on a Monday evening (they are open from midday to midnight without a day off), it wasn't too busy but it got busier later and in fact they recommend that you book, even on Mondays.

The Golden Spoon offers a wide range of extremely tasty food, mostly quite spicy, but that was fine with me. Even the vegetarian among us had plenty of choice. Everything was cooked quickly and perfectly. The first course looked rather small, but there were six more courses to follow and we couldn't finish all of them.

The entrance to the restaurant is rather dark and the inside isn't much better. The Thai family who run it (the father and grandfather do all the cooking) have been there since 1975 and haven't really changed it since then. There are some Thai paintings on the wall which are probably rather beautiful but they are very dusty so it's difficult to tell. But none of that is important because I didn't go there to look at the walls. What I did look at was our meal being prepared in the kitchen, which is in one corner of the restaurant, and that was a wonderful sight. The meal cost more than I had expected but was worth it.

1. What is the writer trying to do?

- A suggests changes a restaurant could make
- B recommend the food in a restaurant
- C describe what he ate in a restaurant
- D complain about the service in a restaurant

2. What does the writer say about the waitress?

- A It was impossible for her to serve so many customers.
- B It was difficult to choose from the menu without her help.
- C She translated the menu from Thai for them.
- D She took a long time to take their order.

3. What did the writer think of the food?

- A It was too spicy for him.
- B There weren't enough vegetarian dishes.
- C There was too much of it.
- D It was not cooked properly.

4. What did the writer particularly like about the restaurant?

- A the paintings on the walls
- B the entrance
- C the price
- D the position of the kitchen

III. Answer the following questions shortly (keywords)./ 5

1. How were the reviews of the restaurant? _____.
2. On which day is the restaurant closed? _____.
3. What is the writer's impression of the inside of the restaurant
(2 info)? _____.
4. What did he choose to eat? _____.
5. Why was the writer surprised at the end? _____.

II. Fill in the blanks with the correct tense (Present simple / continuous, Past simple, Future) of the verbs in brackets.

Hi Mum

I (be) at the airport now. I (wait) to check in.

There (not be) many passengers waiting for my flight yet – that's probably because I (get) here so early. I'm pleased I haven't got much luggage. There's a woman sitting next to me who (go) to Brazil too. I hope her friends meet her at the airport because she (have) lots of luggage. She's got several suitcases, a little bag and a lot of boxes. She's even got a couple of backpacks.

I (buy) a book about Brazil in the airport shop. The one Uncle James (give) me (not have) much information about the area I'm visiting. I've got a little English money left, so (go) and spend it on a coffee now. Talk to you when I get there.

Love,

Joe
